ABSTRACT

This report on the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan covers participating countries of the British Commonwealth and provides statistics for the reporting years of April 1, 1993-March 31, 1994, April 1, 1994-March 31, 1995, and April 1, 1995-March 31, 1996. Trends noted in a brief narrative overview include: during April 1993-March 1996, 5,068 awards were granted in Britain, Canada, Australia, India, New Zealand, and other Commonwealth countries; most of these awards were scholarships (95 percent), while the remainder were fellowships (5 percent); in 1995-96 there was a decline in the overall number of awards held; 24 percent of Commonwealth scholars are over the age of 35; and women make up less than half the total number of Commonwealth scholars. Statistical tables include: scholarship nominations invited by the awarding countries; scholarship applications received in the nominating countries; applications received by awarding countries; new scholarships held in the awarding countries; scholarships by age and gender by awarding country; scholarships by course of study and subject of study by awarding country; scholarships by place of study by awarding country; trends during 1991-1996 in scholarship and fellowship awards. Appendices provide a list of 1998 Commonwealth scholarship agencies in 37 countries. (SW)

INTRODUCTION

This report on the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan covers the operation of the Plan in the participating countries during the three reporting years:

- 1 April 1993 to 31 March 1994
- 1 April 1994 to 31 March 1995
- 1 April 1995 to 31 March 1996

The Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan (CSFP) was drawn up at the first Commonwealth Education Conference held at Oxford in 1959. Since then its progress has been regularly reviewed at Conferences of Education Ministers which are held approximately every three to four years, the most recent being Islamabad in 1994.

The aim of the Plan is to enable men and women of high academic promise to benefit from advanced study in a Commonwealth country other than their own so that on their return they may make a significant contribution to their country's development.

The report, which appears in a new format, has been prepared by the Commonwealth Secretariat in consultation and close co-operation with the Association of Commonwealth Universities (ACU) who were responsible for the data collection.

Our thanks to the CSFP agencies who provided the information requested. Any omissions or possible inconsistencies in the data will be minor and due to the absence of completed returns by some agencies.

Further information on the CSFP may be obtained from either the Commonwealth Secretariat, the Association of Commonwealth Universities or the current CSFP country agencies listed in Appendix 2.

OVERVIEW

A. ALL AWARDS

During the three years under report (1993/4 - 1994/5 - 1995/6) there were 5068 holders of Commonwealth awards. Most were in the form of Scholarships (95%) with Fellowships comprising 5%. This represents a slight increase compared to the previous three years (4852). The principal awarding countries remain as Britain (48%), Canada (23%), Australia (20%), India (5%) and New Zealand (3%). All other awarding countries account for just 1% of the total.

Overall the number of SCHOLARSHIPS held remained constant, reflecting the movement of the relatively large cohort. Fluctuations were present between individual awarding countries although Australia recorded a steady increase (see chart below)

C. NEW AWARDS

The above figures for ALL awards and SCHOLARSHIPS, taken on aggregate, suggest that a plateau may have been reached. A closer look at NEW awards, however, suggests a different pattern emerging. At the 12th Conference of Commonwealth Education Ministers (Islamabad, October 1994), Ministers expressed the hope that a target of 2,000 awards by the year 2000 would be fulfilled and exceeded They welcomed pledges from Britain, Canada, Hong Kong, Trinidad and Tobago and New Zealand to maintain their CSFP awards, and the intention of some to increase their commitments to the Plan when circumstances permitted. Ministers applauded plans to increase commitments by Australia, India and Malaysia and offers of new awards by Brunei, Malawi, Mauritius, Pakistan, Sierra Leone, Tanzania and Uganda. Against this background, and acknowledging that the period under report overlaps the Islamabad Conference, the target of 2000 awards may, under the present circumstances, be overly ambitious. There are two trends which stand out. Firstly, in 1995/96 there was a decline in the overall number of awards held (1692 compared to 1723). Secondly, as Table 3 shows, there has been a constant drift towards fewer new awards being offered and taken up each year.

Table 3 - NEW Awards (Scholarships and Fellowships)

Year	Aus	Brit	Can	Ind	N.Z	Other	Total
1993/94	128	340	94	32	24	6	618
1994/95	125	403	34	24	22	1	608
1995/96	85	339	29	19	13	0	485
Total	338	1082	157	75	59	7	1718

Aus	Brit	Can	Ind	N.Z	Other	Total
338	1082	157	75	59	7	1718

Although the absolute number of new awards in 1993/94 and 1994/5 was solid, it is the downward trend and the low return for 1995/96 that is a cause for concern. It suggests that if this continues the CSFP, rather than heading towards 2000 awards, may actually be moving the other way.

Principal awarding countries have indicated that, in general, the reductions reflect current economic circumstances and are consistent with general budget cuts across a variety of Government sectors. That there are similar financial stringencies in some (but not all) potential awarding countries means that the pool of awards is not being expanded.

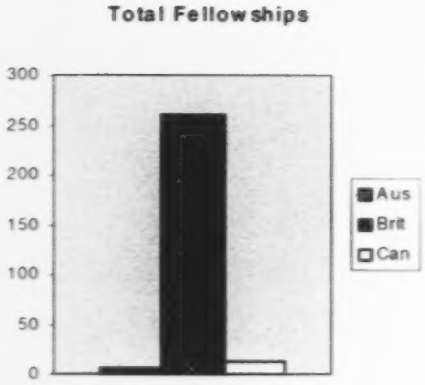
Table 4 - Total FELLOWSHIPS



Britain is the major awarder of fellowships and a slight downward trend is apparent.

E. AGE PROFILE (Scholarships)

As a primarily post graduate programme, the majority of scholars are mature age. Most are consistently between 30 -34 (33%) and 25 - 29 (31%). Of interest is the fact that nearly one in four (24%) of Commonwealth scholars are over the age of 35.

Table 5 - Age

F. GENDER PROFILE (Scholarships)

Although the percentage of women receiving awards is generally slightly higher than the percentage of nominations submitted, women still make up significantly less than half the total number of Commonwealth scholars.

Table 6 - Gender (Scholarships)

Gender

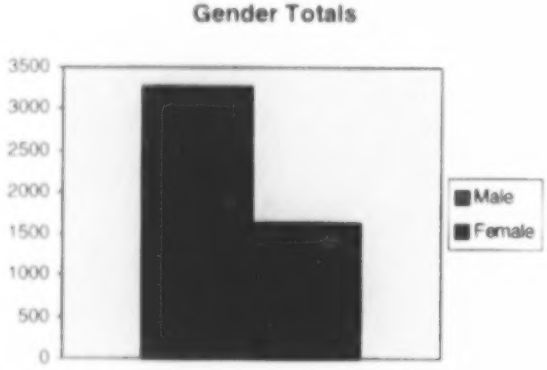
Year	Male	Female	%M	%F
1993/94	1121	521	67.6	32.4
1994/95	1089	537	66.2	33.8
1995/96	1057	555	65.6	34.4
Total	3267	1613	66.5	33.5

Male	Female	%M	%F
3267	1613	67.0	33.0

A consistent trend reveals an average ratio of approximately two to one although there is a gradual, but small, increase in the percentage of women receiving awards. Nonetheless, as an average figure it means, of course, that the actual percentage in certain countries will be even lower.

The Report of the CSFP Third Ten-Year Review Committee (May 1993) noted that many countries had indicated that special efforts were being taken to increase the number of women holding awards. The use of quotas was one example although it was reported that there was no consensus between countries on this mechanism. Others have suggested that easing the upper age limit - if applicable - for anyone who has been out of academic work but who can demonstrate ability would be beneficial, especially to women who have interrupted their employment or studies to assume family responsibilities.

A recent feature in some awarding countries has been to reduce the terms and conditions. This has been done to maintain the number of awards within declining budgets. However, this can be to the detriment of women if, in order to take up an award, they need to be bring dependents.



G. CONCLUSION

Consistent with its original aim, the CSFP continues to make a significant contribution to development. There are, however, some areas for concern. Changing times raise new issues and new challenges. It is hoped that this report, which will be tabled at the 13th Conference of Commonwealth Education Ministers (Gaborone, July 1997), will assist Ministers in reaching decisions that will further enhance the benefits of the CSFP to all member countries.

GLOSSARY

Definitions agreed upon at Commonwealth Education Conferences for use in reports and statistics relating to the Plan are given below:

institution of awards: when a country has by a government decision made financial provision etc. for Scholarships or Fellowships under the Plan for study by citizens of other Commonwealth countries in its own country it is said to have instituted awards;

awarding country: a country which has instituted awards is known as an awarding country;

submission of nominations: when a country has forwarded a shortlist of recommended candidates from its own country for final consideration in an awarding country it is said to have nominated them;

nominating country: any country invited to submit nominations;

award offered: is an award which has actually been offered by the awarding country to a specific candidate nominated by another country. This phrase does not apply to the invitation to another country by an awarding country to submit nominations;

award accepted: is an award which has been accepted by the candidate to whom it was offered, whether yet taken up or not;

award taken up: is an award which has been utilised to the extent that the scholar has actually commenced study under the Plan in the awarding country;

awards made available: when an awarding country has instituted a fixed number of awards it makes a proportion of them available each year for new selections;

set of awards: when an awarding country makes available a group of awards tenable from a date common to the group as a whole the awards are known as a set of awards and may be referred to by the name of the awarding country and the calender year in which they are tenable. Thus awards tenable in tenable in Australia from March 1995 are referred to as Australia 1995.

Note: Definitions are also listed in the Administrative Handbook (Sixth Edition 1991) of the Plan.
